REAL PEOPLE WITH HOLLYWOOD STORIES: A COLLECTION OF CREATIVE NONFICTION

Author
Sneed, Brandon

Abstract
"Real People With Hollywood Stories" is a collection of creative journalism stories I've written to fulfill the requirements of the M.A. in English with a concentration in creative nonfiction. These are stories I discovered and had published or soon will have published in my work as a freelance journalist for GQ, ESPN The Magazine, and other media. My goal in life as a writer, presently as a journalist and in the future as both journalist and novelist, is to find fascinating stories of compelling real-life characters and tell them in a way that transports people away from the real world and their problems, even if only briefly, as any good story should. As a young man starting on this path, these stories were phenomenal examples of what I should not only look for as a storyteller, but look to employ in my own life.

URI
http://hdl.handle.net/10342/4077

Subject
Journalism; ESPN; GQ

Date
2012

Citation:
APA:
(http://hdl.handle.net/10342/4077.)
Display/Hide MLA, Chicago and APA citation formats.
Her story lives in the pages and breathtaking pictures of Harlow in Hollywood. When Jean Harlow became the Blonde Bombshell, it was all Hollywood's doing. Originally published in Paris, this is a collection of Hollywood's darkest and best kept secrets from the pen of Kenneth Anger, a former child movie actor who grew up to become one of America's leading underground film-makers. Purchase / Learn More.

2. The Day of the Locust by Nathanael West.

Hollywood is the name that conjures up romantic dreams and makes them come true. This hub takes you through the history from the earliest days to the modern dream factory. Hollywood, California - where, beginning a century ago, the great American dream burst out of our collective subconscious and into the open. There is no other name that frees our fantasies and stirs our hopes and fears, our tears and our eternal romances, like that single incomparable word - Hollywood.