There are many reasons why a cookie could not be set correctly. Below are the most common reasons:

- You have cookies disabled in your browser. You need to reset your browser to accept cookies or to ask you if you want to accept cookies.
- Your browser asks you whether you want to accept cookies and you declined. To accept cookies from this site, use the Back button and accept the cookie.
- Your browser does not support cookies. Try a different browser if you suspect this.
- The date on your computer is in the past. If your computer's clock shows a date before 1 Jan 1970, the browser will automatically forget the cookie. To fix this, set the correct time and date on your computer.
- You have installed an application that monitors or blocks cookies from being set. You must disable the application while logging in or check with your system administrator.

Why Does this Site Require Cookies?

This site uses cookies to improve performance by remembering that you are logged in when you go from page to page. To provide access without cookies would require the site to create a new session for every page you visit, which slows the system down to an unacceptable level.

What Gets Stored in a Cookie?

This site stores nothing other than an automatically generated session ID in the cookie; no other information is captured.

End of year retrospective performed with one of the teams i work with. Used the Christmas Carol format focusing on the past, present and future. The inspiration was taken from David E Manske’s blog with a few changes. This is how the board looked at the start of the session. Here is how i facilitated the session. Prepare the board as above. I downloaded a free Christmas font to make the three headings “Christmas Past”, “Christmas Present” and “Christmas Future”. I introduced the format to the team and gave them 10 minutes to write down their thoughts in each area. Christmas Past – What did the team regret they did or didn’t do this year? What could they have changed? For Christmas, the Fairy Scrum Master is granting you 1 wish. Just One. Imagine; The Fairy Scrum Master is able to make the single, most painful problem in your team vanish & with no side effects. What is the 1 thing you would fix for your team? The purpose of this retrospective is to use the ‘just one thing’ retrospective format. I usually run this type of retro when a team has many challenges ahead of them, and morale of the team is in danger if the flood gates are opened too far, too quickly. We then returned to our own personal wish, and looked at the ideas we had been given by our peers. We cycled through the list of wishes and their associated solution-offerings, getting clarity from the contributor if necessary. This was particularly useful for us. In a reversal of themes for Christmas fodder it’s not promoting family togetherness instead of materialism. Instead it’s Shirley’s drive for a traditional family Christmas that causes conflict with friendship eventually becoming more important to the characters that the usual ‘TV family’. This ties into the other plot that takes up the rest of the episode. At the beginning of the episode Jeff intervenes in an argument between Abed and the new school bully Mike (played awesomely by Anthony Michael Hall). Initially Jeff tries his usual dismissal of the jock but Mike’s persistence leads to Jeff a
